Group Spiritual Direction is a communal process in which people gather to assist one another in an ongoing awareness God in all of life. It is a way of listening and reflecting with a community of fellow seekers on our encounters with God in everyday life. Group spiritual direction is defined by relationship, so it requires a different way of relating with each other. Members must desire an honest relationship with God, participate in the group through prayerful listening and response, and willingly share their spiritual journey with others and be open to what they offer in return.

Due to the nature of the process of group spiritual direction, the number of participants will be limited. Contact the facilitator Chris Hannigan-Wiehn, if interested.

chrichanniganwiehn@comcast.net .

She will request a phone interview so that each participant understands the nature of the process.
